DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claim 9 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Shimizu, JP 2002039206A.

Regarding claim 9, Shimizu discloses a first and second yokes (1,2) having an almite surface treatment and a trunnion assembly (4,3).

Claim 23 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Mizuno, JP 2002181070A.

Regarding claim 23, Mizuno discloses a trunnion assembly (30), bearings (13,33) and an overmold means (21) for securing the bearing cup on the body portions (14).

Claim 23 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Neese, U.S. 3,545,232.

Regarding claim 23, Neese discloses a trunnion assembly (3), bearings (8,4) and an overmold means (9) for securing the bearing cup on the body portions (1).

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 9 December 2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues the prior art of Mizuno does not disclose an overmold means but rather an anodic oxide coating.

In an apparatus claim the method of forming the bearing retainer is not germane to the patentability of the retainer itself. The coating of the prior art serves to at least retain the bearing cup (11) within the bearing cup fitting hole (15).

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 4-8, 19 and 20 are allowed.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter:

The prior art of record does not disclose or suggest all the claimed subject matter including the overmold portion fills a groove formed in the trunnion assembly.

The prior art of record does not disclose or suggest all the claimed subject matter including a plurality of tabs formed from the first overmold portion.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Hatano et al., U.S. 5,259,937 discloses almite treatment consisting of dissolved aluminum.

Moore, U.S. 2,990,018 teaches use of an aluminum coating.
